the 1990s, the number of people in the UK who are aged 65 and over has increased from 10.5 million to 13.5 million (15.5% of the population).

There is a growing awareness of the need to address the health care needs of the elderly population. The Department of Health (1998) has set out a strategy for the care of the elderly, which includes a commitment to improve the health and quality of life of the elderly population.

The strategy is based on the following principles:

- To ensure that the elderly population has access to the services and resources they need to live well.
- To ensure that the elderly population is treated with respect and dignity.
- To ensure that the elderly population is able to participate in decisions about their care and services.

The strategy also includes a commitment to improve the health and quality of life of the elderly population.
