the 1990s, the number of people with a mental health problem has increased by 50% (Mental Health Foundation 1999). The prevalence of mental health problems has increased in all age groups, but the increase has been most marked in the young (Mental Health Foundation 1999).

There is a growing awareness of the need to address the mental health needs of young people (Mental Health Foundation 1999). The National Health Service (NHS) has a responsibility to provide services for young people with mental health problems, but the current NHS budget cuts have meant that the services available to young people have been reduced. The NHS has been forced to reduce the number of mental health professionals and the number of services available to young people. This has led to a significant increase in the number of young people who are not receiving the services they need.
